PROCEDURE YOUNG RESEARCHERS AWARD - ARSLA

Since 2015, ARSLA has been awarding Young Researcher prizes at the FILSLAN/ARSLA Research Meeting.

Definition of Young Researcher: any non-statutory person in a research team working on ALS.

Conditions for awarding the prizes: A jury from the ARSLA Scientific Council and representative of the different research fields will be appointed to assess all oral and poster presentations during the thematic sessions of the Days and the ARSLA session.

The names of the jury members and the conditions for awarding the prizes will be announced by the ARSLA President at the opening of the Research Days.

For posters, a time slot will be specified in the program to ensure that each author/presenter is present when the jury members arrive. Results will be announced by the President of the Scientific Council and a representative of the ARSLA Board of Directors.

What are the prizes for 2026?

- 2 prizes for oral presentations
- 2 prizes for posters

The prizes are awarded to the winning young researchers, in person, and paid in the form of cheques made out to their surnames and first names at the time indicated on the program.
